Welcome

SQIFF is back! This is the first festival completely run by SQIFF's new team. We have been working really hard to get things up and running after a year's gap. We've been doing year round projects focused on community building events across Scotland, and we're really excited to present SQIFF 2023 all in person at CCA (Centre for Contemporary Arts), Glasgow.

Our 2023 Opening Night Shorts showcase queer Scottish work, packed with locally-made movies headlining our event. This year we have commissioned two guest curators to come up with screenings for the festival. Neha Apsara brings a South Asian lesbian shorts collection in partnership with Begana, and Jaye Hudson presents 1988 documentary Sex Change: Shock! Horror! Probe!, followed by a discussion with its pioneering director, Kristiene Clark. And we're really excited for our classic film night featuring extraordinary 90s black comedy drama Nowhere by Gregg Araki.

Outside of your film viewing, come join us for a workshop in cameraless 8mm filmmaking; installations of work by members of Queer Youth Arts Collective and work by Nicole O'Reilly and Luke 'Luca' Cockayne; a crafts fair with local queer artists; a meeting of our regular filmmakers group; and a massage space to keep us relaxed. Alongside all this, we invite people to stay for some socialising during the week at CCA with spaces to chill out and talk to others at the bar as well as joining us for our closing night party in collaboration with Bonjour with a fully BIPOC line-up. See you soon!

Installations

Phreaking Gender

CCA Creative Lab, 3-9pm, Tuesday 26th - Thursday 28th September, Artists: Nicole O'Reilly & Luke 'Luca' Cockayne, United Kingdom, N/C 18+, English Audio

PHREAKING GENDER expands the themes of Nicole O'Reilly's titular documentary into an installation art show. O'Reilly teams up with Luke 'Luca' Cockayne to create a space for all to explore their relationship to gender and the ways that art can support and enhance The Transgender Experience™. In the face of oppressive paternalistic medical systems that deny trans people bodily autonomy, and at a time when our very existence is threatened, PHREAKING GENDER provides a techno-anarchist manifesto, showing that self-augmentation and the creation of radical queer communities is not just a necessity for wellbeing, but as an act of empowerment and rebellion in itself.

Work by Nicole O'Reilly & Luke 'Luca' Cockayne.

Queer Youth Arts Collective

CCA Clubroom, 3-10pm on Tuesday 26th -
Thursday 28th September, 12-10pm on Friday
29th - Saturday 30th September, Various Artists,
United Kingdom, all ages

The pieces of art in this installation were created by members of Eden Court's Queer Youth Arts Collective. QYAC is a group of young queer people from all across the Scottish Highlands who meet online each week to come together as community, create, and connect. This mini exhibition was created to celebrate their talents as young queer artists.

Tuesday 26 September

SQIFF 2023 Opening Night Scottish Shorts

CCA Theatre, 7pm (89m), Various directors, N/C
18+, British Sign Language, and English audio

Starting the festival, as always, we have 'Scottish Shorts'. The screening exclusively contains short films by artists based in Scotland and highlights exquisite talent on our home turf.

The very first film stars SQIFF's own Jamie Rea. Jamie co-curated our 2021 festival and now treats us to a touching lead performance in The Singer. Later, we have Selkie, which brings Scottish mythology and folk song to queer cinema. And, we have Pixie that follows the local party girl as she shares her experience of coming out, transitioning and go-go dancing.

Curated by Nat Lall. We hope to welcome several of the filmmakers for a Q&A. All ticket holders are invited to join us for a drink at CCA after the screening.

Wednesday 27 September

Are you into emotional edging?

CCA Cinema, 3.30pm (61m), Various directors, USA, UK, N/C 16+, English audio

Join us for a journey of conscious and unconscious thoughts. This screening features distinct experimental shorts made by trans and non-binary people that focuses on the varied ways our community tell stories of forming and navigating relationships, both digitally and in real life.

The films in this programme utilise archival footage, found footage, digital glitch, chemical abstraction, digital animation, layered imagery, and direct animation to explore the telling of our stories.

Milo Clenshaw will be hosting a panel discussion after the screening with special guests Hogan Seidel, director of The Backside of God and Jamie Crewe, director of A Luxury.

Curated by Indigo Korres.

Begana

CCA Theatre, 6pm (66m), Various directors, India, N/C 16+, Bengali, English, Hindi, Marathi audio

Begana is bringing you more films from the South Asian queer diaspora! Combining hidden stories, politics with joy and queer loving, come watch films from Rohan Kanawade's drama U for Usha, in which a single mother and a farm labourer in rural India who feels drawn to a female teacher of a local primary school, to Rohin Raveendran's romance The Booth, where a female frisking booth inside a crowded shopping mall stands as a silent ally to a forbidden romance. We hope you're ready for a fresh view through these Sapphic love stories.

Curated by Neha Apsara.

Queer Classics: Nowhere

CCA Cinema, 6.30pm (82m), Dir: Gregg Araki,
BBFC 18+, United States, English audio

Back by popular demand, SQIFF presents Queer Classics. This year we are screening Gregg Araki's Nowhere. The film is a 90s cult queer film complete with colourful punk sets and costumes, grungey soundscapes and silly stoner humour.

The film is the finale of Gregg Araki's Teenage Apocalypse Trilogy series and intertwines camp teenage silliness with the darker elements of coming of age. Bisexual characters at the forefront of the narrative and Araki is a queer asian director. For curator, Nat Lall, it is a personal favourite and inspiration.

Rather than a panel, this screening is preceded with poetry from Blaxploitation Burner Tape 2023 read and written by Isaac Harris. Isaac is a local Queer Black poet whose work compliments the humour and radicalness of Nowhere.

Curated by Nat Lall.

(Tending) (to) (Ta)

CCA Theatre, 9pm (66m), Dir. April Lin, United Kingdom, N/C 16+, English & Mandarin audio (Tending) (to) (Ta) is a narrative-led speculative fiction film which follows an exchange of internal letters between two protagonists who imagine one another across parallel dimensions. Each communicating to an envisioned other, who exists as a possibility beyond their self-perceived boundaries of reality, these two beings meet in a shared world of imagination.

During the event, we'll invite you to think of the following question: what would you ask somebody living in a parallel universe to ours, one freed from the confines of language, gender, and hyper-separation between human and nature? Join us before and after the screening for a (re)writing session that imagines real utopias, an exercise in letter-writing to an inhabitant of an otherworldly realm. In this gentle, meditative dialogue, maybe we can unlock a way to bring their world into ours.

In partnership with Take One Action.

Thursday 28 September

Kokomo City

CCA Cinema, 3.30pm (73m), Dir. D Smith, United States, BBFC 18, English audio

Kokomo City presents the stories of four Black transgender sex workers in New York and Georgia. Shot in striking black and white, the boldness of the facts of these women's lives and the earthquaking frankness they share complicate this enterprise, colliding the everyday with cutting social commentary and the excavation of long-dormant truths. Unfiltered, unabashed, and unapologetic, D. Smith and her collaborators offer a refreshing rawness and vulnerability unconcerned with purity and politeness.

In honour of Koko Da Doll, this screening is hosted by House Ball Scotland, holding an aftercare space which will be detailed on the evening.

House Ball Scotland is a QTIBIPOC-led community and platform for the underground ball scene in Scotland.

Co-curated by Nusa.

Fleeting Love

CCA Theatre, 6pm (94m), Various directors, Denmark, Philippines, Sweden, Switzerland, Taiwan, United Kingdom, USA, N/C 16+, Danish, English, German, Mandarin Chinese, Polish, Swiss German, Tagalog audio ‘Fleeting Love’ is a collection of short films that capture brief (but tender) romantic encounters. Expect sepia-toned super 8 clips, wind blowing through long hair, lustful stares and tugs on your heartstrings.

The pace of the films in the selection ebbs and flows with runtimes ranging from 3 to 20 minutes. Films such as Swimming in the Dark bring slower romantic builds alongside slow rippling water. Whereas the closing film Strangers is the shortest of the collection and follows two lovers clinging on to each other as they zoom past the camera on a motorbike.

Curated by Nat Lall. The screening starts with poetry from local queer romantic poet Hatty Nestor.

Queer East Presents: Alien Body, Human Dreams

CCA Cinema, 6.30pm (93m), Various directors, Canada, Indonesia Netherlands, Philippines, Taiwan, UK, Vietnam, N/C 16+, Chinese, English, French, Indonesian audio

A series of cinematic investigations that centre the body as a potent site of hybridity, rejecting false divisions of man/woman, human/animal/alien, self/other to construct their own embodied, multifaceted ways of being. Artists in this programme purposefully employ queering as a technique to misread, re-appropriate, and puncture the systems of power projected onto the body. In these works by queer Southeast and East Asian filmmakers, we meet a speculative reality where human body parts are sold in food trucks and witness a dance-fight between a lion dancer and a contemporary dancer. Bodyhacking, ritualising, and ceremonialising is used to knead cosmologies, folding knowledges in upon themselves.

Curated by April Lin 林森

Sex Change: Shock! Horror! Probe! with TGirlsonFilm

CCA Theatre, 9pm (58m), Dir. Kristiene Clark, UK, N/C 16+, English audio

Thatcherite Britain, 1989 and transsexuals are fighting back. Cabaret star, Adele Anderson is facing a transphobic backlash after being cruelly outed by the press. Meanwhile in Manchester, Stephanie Anne Lloyd is a successful trans business woman selling gender affirming products to a huge cross dressing clientele, with shoulder pads and gusto. The European Court faces Mark Rees as he argues his case to be legally seen as male, whilst Christine Goodwin hurtles round East London driving a bus. The first trans MP, Racheal Webb, attempts to reclaim the guardianship of her child since transitioning. Director Kristiene Clark fought back against the transphobic media, with an appeal to gender liberation.

Kristiene Clark will join us for an exclusive Q&A after the screening.

Curated by Jaye Hudson.

Friday 29 September

Building Community with LGBT Unity

CCA Theatre, 12.30pm (30m), Various directors, UK, N/C 16+, English and Portuguese audio

In the summer of 2023, SQIFF and LGBT Unity hosted filmmaking workshops for queer asylum seekers and refugees. The workshops were facilitated by filmmakers Campbell X and Ambroise of Paradax Period, and focused on not only storytelling, filming and editing, but also building community and creating accessible ways to make films.

In this screening, we bring you all the shorts made during this workshop series, followed by a small Q&A where Campbell X and Ambroise talk about this process with some of the participants.

Presented in partnership with LGBT Unity Scotland, a community-led group providing essential support to LGBTQIA+ refugees, asylum seekers, and other migrants.

Come Back to the 5 and Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean with TGirlsonFilm

CCA Theatre, 3pm (109m), Dir. Robert Altman, USA, BBFC 15, English audio

Five girlies reunite at a five-and-dime for the 20th anniversary of James Dean's death. They all gossip and process where life has led them over a cup of coffee, the film features five female leads, one of which is Cher and another is a glamorous transsexual. Based on a play and directed by Robert Altman, this is trans director Kristiene Clarke's favourite trans representation.

Curated by Jaye Hudson. Presented with TGirlsonFilm and Introduction by Kristiene Clarke.

'Animation Now' celebrates a new generation of queer animators. The programme includes both 2D and 3D animation in the form of narrative shorts, experimental art film and an immersive game walkthrough.

The screening starts with the heartfelt 3D animation Dear Nana telling the story of the narrator's late grandmother who was a supportive figure throughout their life. Clotilde follows suit in the 3D animated medium but provides a playful light-hearted moment in the programme.

The screening ends with a panel featuring some of the filmmakers in the programme on the newest wave of digital animation. Expect talk of gaming-inspired filmmaking.

Curated by Nat Lall.

Queer East Presents: Peafowl 공작새

CCA Theatre, 9pm (115m), Dir. Byun Sung-bin,
South Korea, N/C 16+, Korean audio

Shin-myung is a transgender woman and dancer who competes in waacking, a form of voguing. Having cut ties with her family and rural hometown, Shin-myung seeks various ways to fund her gender reassignment surgery. But one day, she is informed that her estranged father, a master of Nongak folk music, has died. He stipulated that Shin-myung can receive her inheritance money if she returns to the village and performs a traditional drum dance, as part of his memorial rituals. Unwilling to yield to her intolerant father's posthumous demands, the unapologetic Shin-myung is forced to reluctantly reconnect with her past while staying true to herself. Driven by an empowering vision of trans identity, this assured debut feature from Byun Sung-bin contemplates the possibilities – and limits – of forgiveness.

Not Quite That

CCA Theatre, 12.30pm (60m), Various directors, Australia, Canada, UK, N/C 16+, English audio

'Not Quite That' follows 57-year-old Sarah, a butch lesbian predisposed to breast cancer.

Sarah discusses the implications of a mastectomy as a butch presenting person. She contemplates if people would perceive her as transmasculine and how that would make her feel.

Her long-term close friends listen attentively and help her process the situation. The love and support shared by this group of old friends is heartwarming. A feel-good film for sure.

This film is followed by two shorts. Director Leo Torre of The Ship of Theseus will join us to chat about short filmmaking and the importance of queer/trans friendships.

Curated by Nat Lall.

Queerventures with Kendal Mountain Events

CCA Cinema, 3pm (71m), Various director, Switzerland, UK, US, N/C 16+, English and French audio

Kendal Mountain Festival is one of the UK's longest running Adventure Film Festivals. Their programming goes far beyond the stereotypical adventurer, reaching out to individuals whose narratives are often overlooked. As part of this they have proudly curated a film programme of Queer-led films to stand in solidarity with the local LGBTQIA+ community and ensure that everyone sees themselves represented in the adventure world.

The event will be hosted by one of the Kendal Mountain team, Emily Lyons who will guide you through films that will transport you all over the world and showcase a multitude of folk from the community, from those getting outdoors everyday and people at the top of their game.

Documenting and Archiving

CCA Theatre, 3.30pm (85m), Various directors, India, USA, UK, N/C 18+, English and Hindi audio

This event is all about queer histories, past and present. It explores a range of approaches to documentation and archiving.

The programme alternates between shorts of around 5min and 'longer shorts' of 10+ minutes. The first films are about American and English histories of the 80s-90s. The next couple document millennial queer experiences surrounding advancements in technological communication. And the latter films tell of QTIBPOC resistance, love and solidarity.

This screening will conclude with a panel hosting River Seager of I Am a Cyborg: Conversations About Queerness and Anime, and Campbell X of Still We Thrive on the importance of documenting queer experiences.

Curated by Nat Lall.

Queer Filmmakers Group

CCA Creative Lab, 4.30am-6.30pm, Various directors, UK, English audio, all ages

Are you a queer filmmaker wanting to meet other queer filmmakers and develop project ideas together?

The Queer Filmmakers Group is an initiative to bring local queer filmmakers together for monthly two-hour group sessions to network and support each other in the development of film projects. For this session, L.I.P.S. (Lesbians in Peer Support), a youth group that Glasgow Women's Library ran from 2000 to 2006 will join us to screen 'Dykes in the City', a trilogy of three short films produced in collaboration with GMAC in 2001. The event will include a panel discussion with the filmmakers.

The group is open for any level of filmmaking and we really encourage people just starting out in the medium to come along.

Facilitated by Leo Torre.

Closing Film: Mutt

CCA Theatre, 7pm (97m), Dir. Vuk Lungulov-Klotz, USA, N/C 16+, English and Spanish audio

Mutt tells the story of a young trans man named Feña reacquainting with family and friends he has not seen since before his transition.

Feña (Lío Mehiel) experiences contrasting moments of hostility and heartfelt care upon reintroduction to his father, younger sister and ex-boyfriend. The father shows signs of intimidation by his child's new masculinity, the ex-boyfriend questions his own sexuality and the younger sister naively asks questions that hit a nerve.

Mutt is the final film of our 2023 festival and will be followed by a short closing ceremony. Join us to celebrate another year of the Scottish Queer International Film Festival.
